Byham Theater

Founded in 2007 by choreographer Andrea Miller, GALLIM is a New York City dance company celebrated for its visceral physicality, cross-disciplinary artistry, and imaginative performances. The company has appeared at major venues including The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Lincoln Center, The Kennedy Center, Brooklyn Academy of Music, Jacob's Pillow, and Théâtre National de Chaillot.

Through the GALLIM School of Movement, the company brings its creative philosophy to artists of all levels and has collaborated with leading universities such as The Juilliard School, Harvard University, and NYU. GALLIM continues to push the boundaries of dance and interdisciplinary art, exploring the full expressive potential of the human body.
Andrea Miller, the company's founder and artistic director, is an internationally acclaimed choreographer whose work spans dance, film, fashion, and visual art. Her commissions include English National Ballet, Martha Graham Dance Company, and New York City Ballet, with collaborations across Hermès, VOGUE, Target, Max Mara, and more.
