

Pittsburgh Symphony to premiere Bostic's "August Wilson Symphony" in January

On January 20, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will perform the world premiere of Kathryn Bostic's August Wilson Symphony at Heinz Hall, conducted by Lucas Richman. The August Wilson Symphony pays tribute to the award-winning playwright with music inspired by the 10 Play Cycle Wilson wrote based on his life experiences growing up in Pittsburgh's Hill District.