Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra's European Tour 2013

Our Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra (PSO) is currently on a European Festivals Tour through the countries of Austria, Germany, France, Romania and Switzerland. Members of the orchestra are doing a fabulous job of using technology and social media to help make those of us here at home in the 'Burgh feel like we're right along with them on the adventure. Make sure to check the Wonderaddo Extended Learning section at the end of this post for ways to join the virtual trip across Europe.

The musicians are posting blogs of their experiences in each country as well as behind-the-scenes photos and videos of event locations and performance preparations.

In addition to the PSO play-by-play of the tour, we can follow along with WQED's Jim Cunningham who is accompanying the tour. Jim hosts the WQED-FM Morning Show and the weekly PSO broadcasts. He has been a travel correspondent for more than 20 PSO world tours! He is blogging regularly, posting pictures and doing radio interviews which are available on WQED's website as audio on demand if you don't catch them live. The WQED photo gallery is great for sharing with your children. The pictures let them do some virtual sightseeing to experience parts of the culture of each of the countries on the tour – through food, native language on signs, landmarks and local architecture.

EXTENDED LEARNING

Follow the PSO tour blog to hear from the musicians themselves about the what it's like to be on tour.

Check out both the main PSO Facebook page and the PSO Musicians Facebook page for photos and videos from the tour.

Read Jim Cunningham's travel correspondent blog and don't miss looking through the WQED photo gallery. It's one of the best ways to feel like you are right there on tour with the orchestra.

The very best way to join in the adventure may be these audio reports from the tour, which include clips from the performances and interviews with the musicians and staff.
